THE PULPIT.

AN ELCQUENT SUNDAY SERMON BY CHAPLAIN CLARK, OF THE NAVAL ACADEMY.

Subject: The Unlooked-For Increment Baltimore. Md.-The following brilliant sermon was contributed to the Sunday Sun by the Rev. H. H. Clark, D. D., chaplain of the United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis. It is "The Unlooked-For Increment," and was preached from the "Behold. I have done according to Thy words; Lo! I have given thee a wise and understanding heart. And I have also given thee that which thou hast not asked."-II Kings, iii., 12-13. Solomon's request is a surprise. Left to the promptings of ambition it is not characteristic of men to ask for simple gifts or few. The natural request would have been for the things the King did not ask-long life, riches. honor, victory over enemies. Instead the request was simple and unselfish. It was made with a most becoming humility. It was for a wise and understanding heart. This would be enough. Then came the Jehovah's answer: "I have given thee a wise and understanding heart. And I have also given thee that which thou hast not asked." This was increment, increase, that Solomon had not counted on.

How much is involved in doing the right thing at the outset! Somehow first things take hold on last things. The energy of the first block the child pushes over in the row is not expended till the last block is down. The first branches you bend and tie into shape make way for the beauty and symmetry of the full grown tree. The shipbuilder can tell from the keel that is laid the sort of ship that is going to be built. From the dimensions of growing columns the architect can quickly estimate the weight of arches or dome. So God sees in some simple, honest prayer we may offer the beginning of all we may ever achieve of knowledge. goodness, service; sees in it all our life shall ever mean to ourselves and other fellow-men. Wonderful are the connections be ween first things and last!

It is, too, an immeasurable satisfaction that when we have done the right act, said the right word, offered the right prayer, put ourselves in the right attitude in anything our responsibility ceases. Then the way of Divine Providence is opened in our lives. Solomon made just the right prayer; then God gave him what he had not asked.

How this simplifies life! We have only to do the right thing at the right time; the rest takes care of itself. In ordinary circumstances we all know well enough what the right thing is. In the Old Testament a well-known character said: "I, being in the way, the Lord led me." The secret of it was that Eliezer started on the right. road; then the Lord led him to the well. The happy outcome we all know. When our prayer is: "Make me true to this work, this demand, this occasion, this duty," using the light we get, we need give ourselves no further trouble. Results are not in our hands.

The disciples all began their careers by the use of this method. Without thought of what was to come, they simply obeyed the Master's call. His command was: "Follow Me!" and straightway Simon and Andrew left the net they were casting into the lake, and James and John the net they were mending in the boat, and followed Him. So with all the others. They left what they were doing to do what a lot of both."-February Lippincott's, | Christ told them to do. They had no more conception of what was to follow than the child Shakespeare or the child Milton had of what was to follow his learning of the alphabet. In the simplest, honestest manner the disciples put themselves in right relations to Christ, and their act changed the course of history.

> Admiral Farragut touched this truth on another side. In the darkest days of the Civil War the President called him to Washington for consultation. The people were finding fault with this General and that General, with the President, with pretty much everything. One evening in a large company the Admiral sat listening to the faithfulness of God have a very great complaints of the hearthstone warriors. At length he said in quiet tones, but with the strength of moving fleets in help? In the first place, prayer, if it be them: "I have one great advantage— true prayer—an earnest and confident I have only to go where I am sent." The thing in hand occupied him ab- has a wonderful effect upon the characsorbingly, wholly. What he sought ter of the person who offers it. Such was the wise and understanding heart | prayer brings the petitioner into close for the present duty; the rest was in the Almighty's hands.

> Great men for the most part have been as simple-hearted as Solomon in his prayer. They placed the emphasis not on what they wanted to do, but on what they wanted to be: not on dreams of life, but on fitness for life. They took the same ship, so to say, in the beginning from which they disembarked in the end, though they were as ignorant of the voyage before them as Solomon was of the coming events of five, or even two per cent. returns from

There are many things we desire about which we need not much concern ourselves if we make use of this principle. Soloraon, for example, did not ask for a long life; yet long life was reaches of eternity, the interest is ininvolved in a wise and understanding | finite. heart. The man who sets out to do his duty in all respects should not trouble himself about the number of his days. Let him live the life, and, whether it be long or short, it is a life. But the chances are that it will be long. It has been noted in armies that the men who are fussiest about living are frequently the men who do not pull through. Xenophon noted this fact more than 2300 years ago. In the Anabasis, we sent them negatively to others, and recollect, when Clearchus and other then we must help those we would leading Greek Generals had been slain | save to develop a desire for positive in the tent of Tissaphernes through the | truth. had faith of the Persians the Greek army, in the heart of the enemy's was greatly discouraged. Then Xenophon addressed the army in words like these: "I have observed this, O men, that as many as desire to live by all means in military affairs, these for the most part die cowardly and disgraced. But as many as recognize that death is common and necessary to aft men, and strive to die honorably, I see these, by some means or other, arrive at old age, and while they live live successfully.' The same truth applies to happiness. Counters and shelves are crowded with books on happiness: "The Art of Hap-The same thing holds true of repuday of life.

Many people are our si ssouidded to the pursuit of hard speculations as to getting. less titles, ringing the changes on happiness," "How To Be Happy"-count-tation. One of the things Solomon did not ask was honor. It was enough for him to be wise and just. Wisdom and justice were the highest sources of his honor. For wisdom and justice he is reputed above all else. If day by day we strive for the inward things from which reputation takes substance and shapeliness, we need give ourselves no further thought about the matter. What men think of us will take care of itself. Growing plants do not give themselves concern over summer; they are the gift of spring to summer, and summer will take care of them. So, living as we ought, we commit our reputation to God, whose presence and whose care are the real summer of all good things among men. If Solomon informed his courtiers of his request to Heaven they probably told him that he had missed a great opportunity. They might easily have said: "Why did you not ask for riches, for vastly extended power and dominion? How much better they would have been than wisdom? We could have furnished the wisdom." But the prayer was of the right sort. Jehovah was pleased with its modesty; and the things that were not asked for were in due time given. The surprise of life often lies in the insignificance of the means to some great end. People in the navy know that the smallest thing connected with a great gun is the most indispensable-the firing pin. That gone, and the gun, so to say, is on the shelf. In the army one of the smallest duties of the cavalryman is the caring for his horse. There is an instance in history where cavalry that did this duty well and cavalry that did it ill, otherwise equally matched, fought a battle, in which those who neglected their horses were cut down almost to a man. Doors to great events swing outward on little hinges. Art and religion and education and war abound with decisions and acts and incidents, small in themselves as mustard seeds. yet so growthful that great events and great deeds have come and lodged in the branches thereof. Let us also treasure the words of the Master in direct line with the truth we have been considering: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

The Poverty of Christ.

Is a man poor! Let him remember Christ's knowledge of his poverty. It is no light thing to be poverty-stricken in the midst of wealth. To see loved ones denied comforts and even necessities merely through lack of a few pieces of glittering metal; to have growing sons and daughters deprived of an education: to see suffering ones unrelieved; to have no opportunities to increase one's usefulness; to expose one's family to moral degradation because of lack of a competence-these are but a few of the evils of poverty. To men in such circumstances, Christ said, "I know thy poverty." Who better could understand? Had He not as an eldest son seen something of. sordid economies in that carpenter's home at Nazareth? Had He not as a widow's main support suffered in the harsh limitations of a Galilean peasant's lot? Had He not at times been deprived of a place to lay His head? It was for your sake He became poor. -Pacific Baptist.

"Ye Shall Know Hereafter."

What is approved by God-honors Him, resembles Him-must be made successful, triumphant and predominant, in His empire. He will not forever suffer the enemy's camp on His grand field. The awful mystery, why this trumphant ascendancy is so slowly achieved, so long delayed in this world, will, it is reasonable to believe, be one of the subjects for illumination in a higher state of existence, where en larging faculties will have endless duration for their exercise. It may then be seen that the whole course of this world, from the beginning to the end, was "a day of small things," as compared with the sequel-only as a brief introduction to an immense and endless economy .- John Foster.

How Prayer Helps. We all know that a good life and a humble testimony to the goodness and influence for good on the minds of all who see and hear; but how does prayer fellowship with God and opens his whole nature to the influence of the Spirit of God; and by so doing fits him to become a zealous and effective witness for God.

In One Single Hour. In that single hour when he brought Peter to Christ, Andrew accomplished more for the world than in all his life besides. It may easily be so with us. Business men are satisfied to get ten, the capital, but no investment equals in returns the investment of a little time and courage in soul-saving. The interest is literally millions per cent. Indeed, if you remember the endless

A FELLOW FEELING. Why She Felt Lenient Towards the Drunkard.

A great deal depends on the point of view. A good temperance woman was led, in a very peculiar way, to revise her somewhat harsh judgment of the poor devil who cannot resist his cups. and she is now the more charitable. She writes:

"For many years I was a great sufferer from asthma. Finally my health got so poor that I found I could not lie down, but walked the floor whilst others slept. I got so nervous I could not rest anywhere.

"Specialists told me I must give up the use of coffee-the main thing that I always thought gave me some relief. I consulted our family physician, and he, being a coffee fiend himself, told me to pay no attention to their advice. Coffee had such a charm for me that in passing a restaurant and getting a whiff of the fragrance I could not resist a cup. I felt very lenient toward the drunkard who could not pass the saloon. Friends often urged me to try Postum, but I turned a deaf ear, saying 'That may do for people to whom coffee is harmful, but not for me-coffee and I will never part.'

"At last, however, I bought a package of Postum, although I was sure I could not drink it. I prepared it as directed, and served it for breakfast. Well, bitter as I was against it, I must say that never before had I tasted a more delicious cup of coffee! From that day to this (more than 2 years) I have never had a desire for the old coffee. My health soon returned; the asthma disappeared, I began to sleep well, and in a short time I gained 20 pounds in weight.

"One day I handed my physician the tablets he had prescribed for me, telling him I had no use for them. He stayed for dinner. When I passed him his coffee cup he remarked, 'I am glad to see you were sensible enough not to let yourself be persuaded that coffee was harmful. This is the best cup of coffee I ever drank,' he continued; 'the trouble is so few people know how | aches, dizziness and blood rushing to to make good coffee.'
